EXODUS 17

Last weekend many of our conversations were about the rain – how much or how little. The grumbles were focussed on how little rain people had received after the promises shown on weather stations.

The weather is a constant source of grumbles, but I don't hear many related to faith or trust.

Job had no such inhibitions about grumbling to God when he lost everything and basically told God what he thought of him.

God has no problems dealing with our anger and grumbles. However, at what point do we stop grumbling and trust?

Rev Dr Anna Grant-Henderson
